wherein the proximal section of the dilator tip has an outer diameter and the distal segment of the elongated tubular member has an inner diameter smaller than the outer diameter of the proximal section of the dilator tip; wherein the proximal section of the dilator tip is positioned at least in part within the distal segment of the elongated tubular member such that the distal segment expands around at least a portion of the proximal section of the dilator tip.
2. (Original) The medical device of claim 1, wherein the proximal segment varies in thickness along its length.
